Street Peddlers' Arias.

Several of your readers lately have been writing letters about the name of the street peddlers. There is no deadt they are a terrible nulsance, particularly to rich people and those who wish particularies to rich people and those who wish and clean as possible. Still, I cannot succeed o sleep daytimes, but I know of no way to stop in heaping these unpleasant intruders outside of hear unites the light of the think the state of them unless the Board of Health takes up the matter or the Board of Aldermen makes a law A PUZZLED HOU gallant soldier in the war and a careful against calling out wares for sale. These felloss, if ther will sell from wagons, should be compelled to stand on the corners and keep quiet, and not be allowed to pass through a they don't stop the yelling I'll do all I can to compel them to, and I hope others will. I have scared some of them off by insisting on seeing their license, and when they had none they let my neighborhood alone. I have always found the police officer ready to drive them away from my neighborhood, but the law ought to prohibit the calling out of wares and make them stand in one place. QUIET NEIGHBOR
